The Carnegie Trust Company, at No. 115 Broadway, was closed today by State Superintendent of Banks Cheney. The taint of the name of Joseph G. Robin, who was one of the original incorporators of the company, was the indirect cause of the failure.

Officers and directors of the Carnegie Trust say the concern will pay dollar for dollar. Supt. Cheney has not issued a statement of the bank's

Following the arrest of Robin-who had not been connected with the company for two years-there was a steady withdrawal of deposits. The Superintendent of Banks was notified on Wednesday that the bank could not hold out against the withdrawals. He started an examination, and last night ordered the officers to put up $500,000 to charge off certain undesirable securities.
